

Networking skills

Commended

LifeSkills

Where can you find information about job vacancies?

Newspapers

Notice boards

Job Centre

Job websites

Where else?

Refer a friend

Many jobs are filled by people who are introduced to the company by a friend or contact.

What percentage of people look for new job opportunities by asking friends and colleagues if they know of any vacancies?

3%

50%

96%

Source: LinkedIn Talent Trends Report, 2015 (business.linkedin.com/content/dam/business/talent-solutions/global/en_us/c/pdfs/global-talent-trends-report.pdf)

‘It’s not what you know, it’s who you know.’

Get into line

- Find the person with the nearest birthday before and after your own
- Use this information to get in age order
- No one can take charge
- You can only find out about the person 'each side' of your own age

Job vacancy

You've been tagged in a comment

 Jane Smith

Great new job vacancy – admin position available to start now.

Please share and ask people to contact me with a CV and cover letter.

 Dylan Matthews: check out this job Nadia Gonzalez – you'd be perfect for it

Networking is...

Networking is a two-way process

Listening carefully

- Understand others
- Find out how you can help them

Speaking clearly

- Help others understand you
- Ask for the help you need

Time to network

Find out three things from three people you don't know that well:

Food

What's your favourite food?

Superpower

What superpower would you like to have?

Holiday

Where would your ultimate holiday be?

Time to connect

What did you learn about others?

Networking tips

Some jobs aren't advertised and others are easier to find through friends and contacts. Networking can help you find out about these 'hidden' jobs or get new ideas, information, help and advice. It can also improve your confidence in talking to other people.

- | | |
|--|--|
|  Do <ul style="list-style-type: none">✓ Always look out for chances to network✓ Introduce yourself: don't wait to be introduced✓ Think about how you can make a good impression✓ Be professional✓ Be yourself✓ Be a good listener and look for ways to help others✓ Explain what you want to find out or what you're looking for✓ Stay safe and only network with someone you know or someone who you have been introduced to |  Don't <ul style="list-style-type: none">✗ Brag or exaggerate✗ Gossip✗ Just ask for a job – explain what you're looking for, for example work experience✗ Pester people |
|--|--|

Who could be in your network?

Where

could you network?

When

could you network?

Who

could you network with?

Young people's words of wisdom

Make an impression and demonstrate your skills when you can – you want people to remember you.

Write down all the interesting people you meet and how they could help you achieve your goals.

Do your research. Before starting a placement or going to an event, research who will be there so you have some background information.

Talk to everyone no matter their role or position – they may see potential in you that they want to support.

Keep in touch with people – send an email every so often or connect on LinkedIn. Maybe send them an article you think they might be interested in.

CVs help you network

- If someone is interested, always ask for their contact details
- Ask if you can send your CV to them
- If they don't have a job right now, they'll remember you for when they do
- This can get you ahead of other people
- They may also know another company that is recruiting, and put you in touch

